

SUMMER UPDATE

FROM MISSION ADVANCEMENT

A STUDENT PERSPECTIVE by Pharez Brown

I was born and raised in the heart of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Why would I, a kid from Milwaukee, want to come to Prep, a school with only 6% of its population being African American?

In 6th grade, I was introduced to Prep by Professor Dodge. At first glance I thought it was really cool, but most of my classmates didn't like it, so I followed the status quo. Then, Professor Glisper began to tell me about his experience as a Prep student. He saw certain gifts in me and invited me to a Luther Prep homecoming football game. At first I tried to act like I didn't want to go, but the seed Professor Glisper planted began to grow. With that I took him up on his offer to visit Luther Prep.

From the first visit here, I experienced love, genuine love. I saw a hub for young believers to indulge in His Word everyday. I felt wanted and a sense of belonging. That's something I didn't get from other schools around, let alone the city I lived in. Recent data shows that 96% of all inmates at youth detention centers in Milwaukee are Black, while making up only 38% of the city's population. While programs are set to combat this, most of them miss the most important aspects: Jesus, Christian community, and true discipleship.

Prep has evolved me into things I never thought I could achieve. Being here has allowed me to be in sports and drama productions. Fall play allowed me to cultivate the gifts of public speaking. I was able to meet new friends and gain a lot of experience in public speaking. This experience prepares me for the public ministry as a pastor. I am able to be more confident through Christ using the things Prep has taught me.

I have seen the faithfulness of God. The faithfulness of God is everlasting, so no matter what position I'm thrust in, he's always there. From sports to drama to various campus activities, everything here prepares me for the public ministry and Christian leadership.

MUSIC CENTER UPDATE

At the Lives Prepared gala in April, we were excited to debut new flythrough videos of the proposed music center, giving supporters and friends of Prep a sneak peek at the future of music and performing arts on campus.

We also invited our Lives Prepared student hosts to watch the flythroughs for the very first time, and their genuine reactions were captured on video. Their excitement and enthusiasm highlight the impact this new space could have on current and future generations of Prep students.

We invite you to watch the student reaction video and learn more about our building project at lps.wels.net/magnify by clicking on "Our Project."
